11 things agents should know about working with millennials

Each generation bears its own unique characteristics. For the millennial generation (those born between 1978 and 1995), homeownership is a top priority. But college debt and uncertain job prospects mean that they often have to move back in with their parents first. Here are 11 insights to help you get to know this market better.

Source: click here