5 things your listing video team needs to know

Real estate video has come a long way from iPhone cuts with listing descriptions dubbed over them. Some listing videos look like they could be Super Bowl commercials. If you're looking to have professional content that showcases a property in all its glory, here are five things your video team better know.

Source: click here