Bada bing! Tony Soprano's New Jersey home is on sale for $3.4M

The spacious New Jersey home where Tony Soprano and his family, the central characters of HBO's hit mob TV drama series The Sopranos, once called home is now up for sale with a starting price of $3.4 million.

As first reported by The New York Times, the North Caldwell, New Jersey property (located at 14 Aspen Drive, North Caldwell, NJ 07006) that was used in the series is being listed by its current owners and builders, who constructed it back in 1987 but have updated it several times since then.

At a sprawling 5,600 square feet, the house has four bedrooms, 4.5 bathrooms, two two-car garages and a separate guest house.

Exterior and driveway of The Sopranos' house. Trulia

Almost every part of it has appeared in some part of the acclaimed series over the years. Tony Soprano is shown pulling into the driveway in the opening credits, while the kitchen was used to film many early scene with Carmela and their kids, Meadow and A.J, as well as Tony's mafia family. The poolside patio is where Tony experiences a panic attack.

Courtesy of HBO

The owners, Patti and Victor Recchia, have chosen to forgo a real estate agent and sell the home on their own.

Victor Recchia, who owns the construction company that built the house, is asking serious prospective buyers to submit offers through sopranoshouseforsale@gmail.com by June 21.

Even putting aside the high asking price, it is not enough to just be a Sopranos fan — the property taxes alone add up to $34,005 a year.

While sites like Zillow and Trulia have estimated the home's value at only $1.5 million, the Recchias said that the home's value and connection to the iconic show cannot be summed up with money alone. According to the NYT, some diehard fans still stop by the show, which ran from 1999 to 2007, from time to time.

"Those things can be quantified," Recchia told the New York Times. "But I don't think you can quantify the intrinsic value of this home."

View this post on Instagram

#tbt outside #tonysoprano house ???? #thesopranos #nj

A post shared by Hussain Ismail (@hussismail) on Mar 3, 2016 at 11:30am PST

Even though most indoor scenes were later moved to a set at Silvercup Studios in nearby Long Island City, New York, the home has become a well-known tourist attraction for those who love The Sopranos.

Whether prospective buyers are quite as willing to pay up for this indelible piece of TV history remains to be seen.

Email Veronika Bondarenko

Source: click here