Consumers get duped on highjacked listings — I did twice

The state of New York is reportedly even considering outlawing the practice. In the face of this legal threat, I've noticed better disclosures by portals about listings. But it's still very confusing.

Source: click here