3 tweaks that'll boost your brand in a saturated market

As a real estate agent, you must distinguish yourself from others and show prospects exactly why they should choose you over another agent. This can be a challenge, but it’s definitely not impossible — and here’s how to do it by tweaking three things you already have: your job title, your services and your influence.

Source: click here