Higher lumber costs have boosted new home prices by $9,000

While rising mortgage rates and historically low inventory levels are often to blame for rising single-family home prices, there’s another culprit: lumber.

Source: click here