Homeownership remains extremely low in some of America's biggest cities

While homeownership is declining across the United States, the drop is even more precipitous in some of America’s largest cities, according to a new report.

Source: click here