Always on the go? Here are 5 tips to be more productive in real estate

In many industries, successful professionals spend their time in corner office suites, sending out commands from behind big mahogany desks. They might leave for lunch or take a brief business trip every couple of weeks, but the office is the home base. Not in real estate.

Source: click here