How trustworthy do your clients think you are?

A new national poll, commissioned by flat-fee brokerage Purplebricks, found that real estate agents and journalists are among the least trustworthy professions in American consumers' minds.

Source: click here