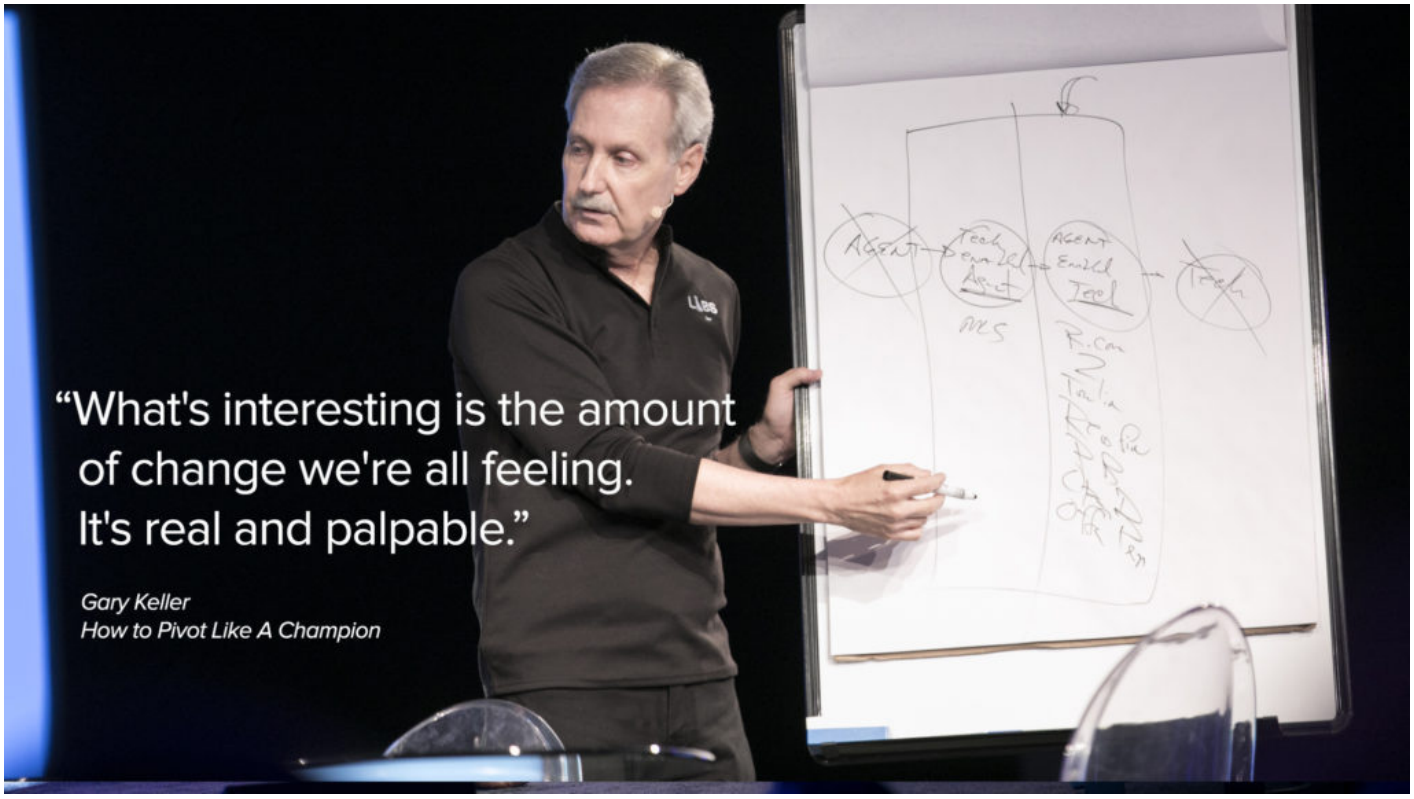
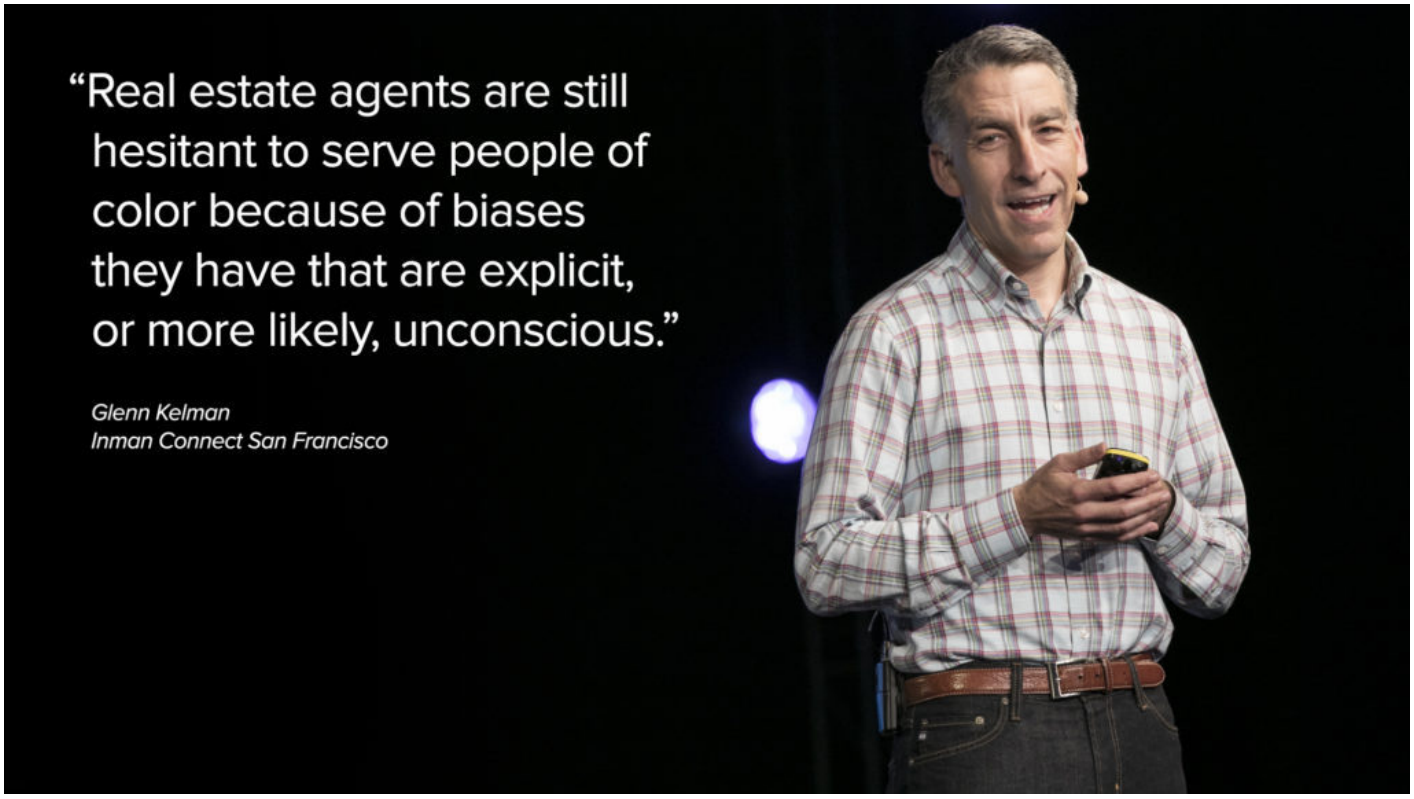
Inman Connect San Francisco: In Pictures

With so many incredible inspiring moments that happened throughout the week at this year's Inman Connect San Francisco to choose from, here's a small selection of some of our favorites.



“Our brain cannot tell the difference between seeing a face on a screen and seeing a face in real life, which means we are now building trust through technology.”
Chelsea Peitz
Living In Real Life: I Am Social, And Social Is Me



“Real estate agents are still hesitant to serve people of color because of biases they have that are explicit, or more likely, unconscious.”
Glenn Kelman
Inman Connect San Francisco

“We’re not in troubled times.
We’re in the contraction that has to precede expansion.”
Tara-Nicholle Nelson
Humanity Is Not A Dumpster Fire

“My single goal is to improve the lives of agents so much that they don't remember what life was like before.”
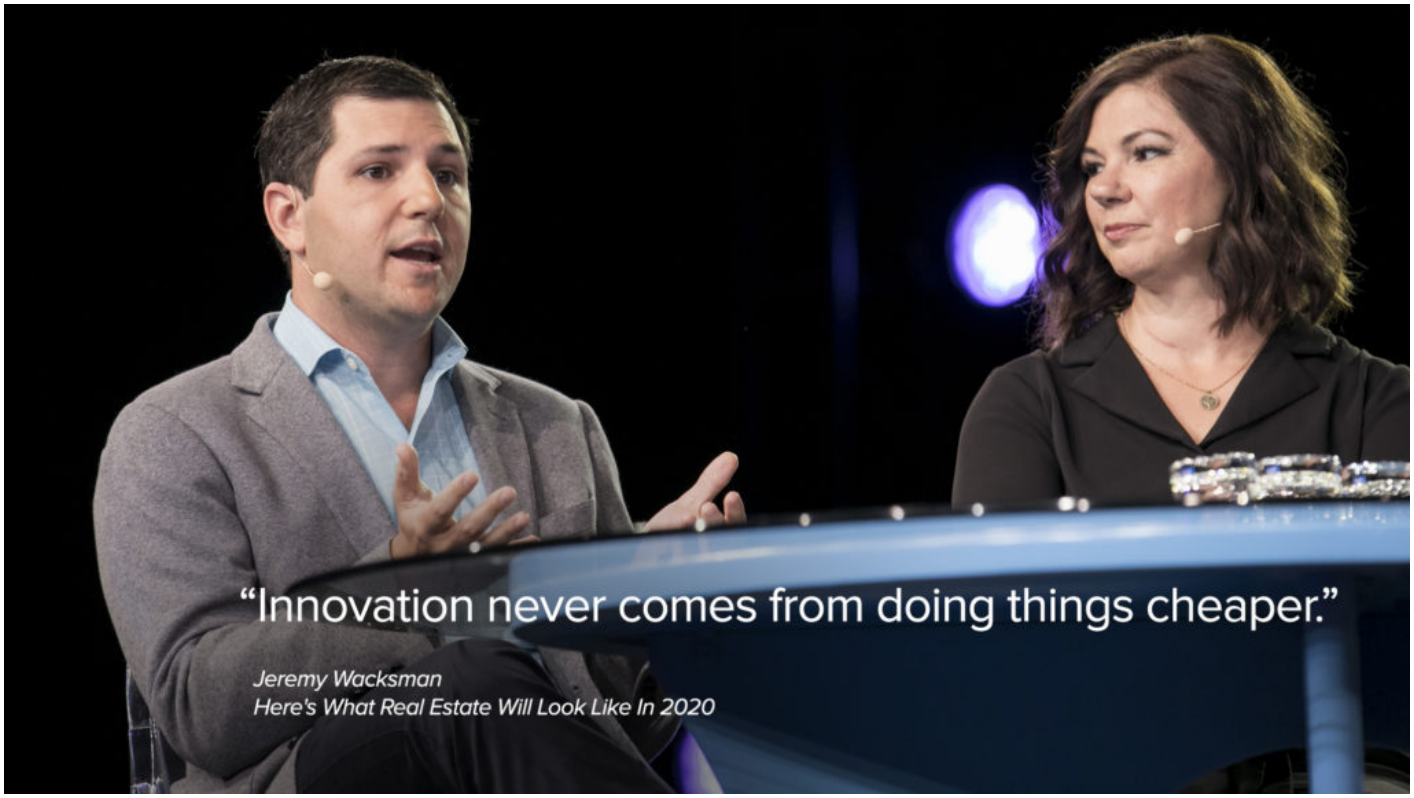
Robert Reffkin
What World Do You Want To Create In The Next 10 Years?

FASTER. BETTER.
“If you don’t want to deprive yourself of joy, don’t compare yourself to others.”
Shabnam Mogharabi
Building An Empire Out Of Positivity

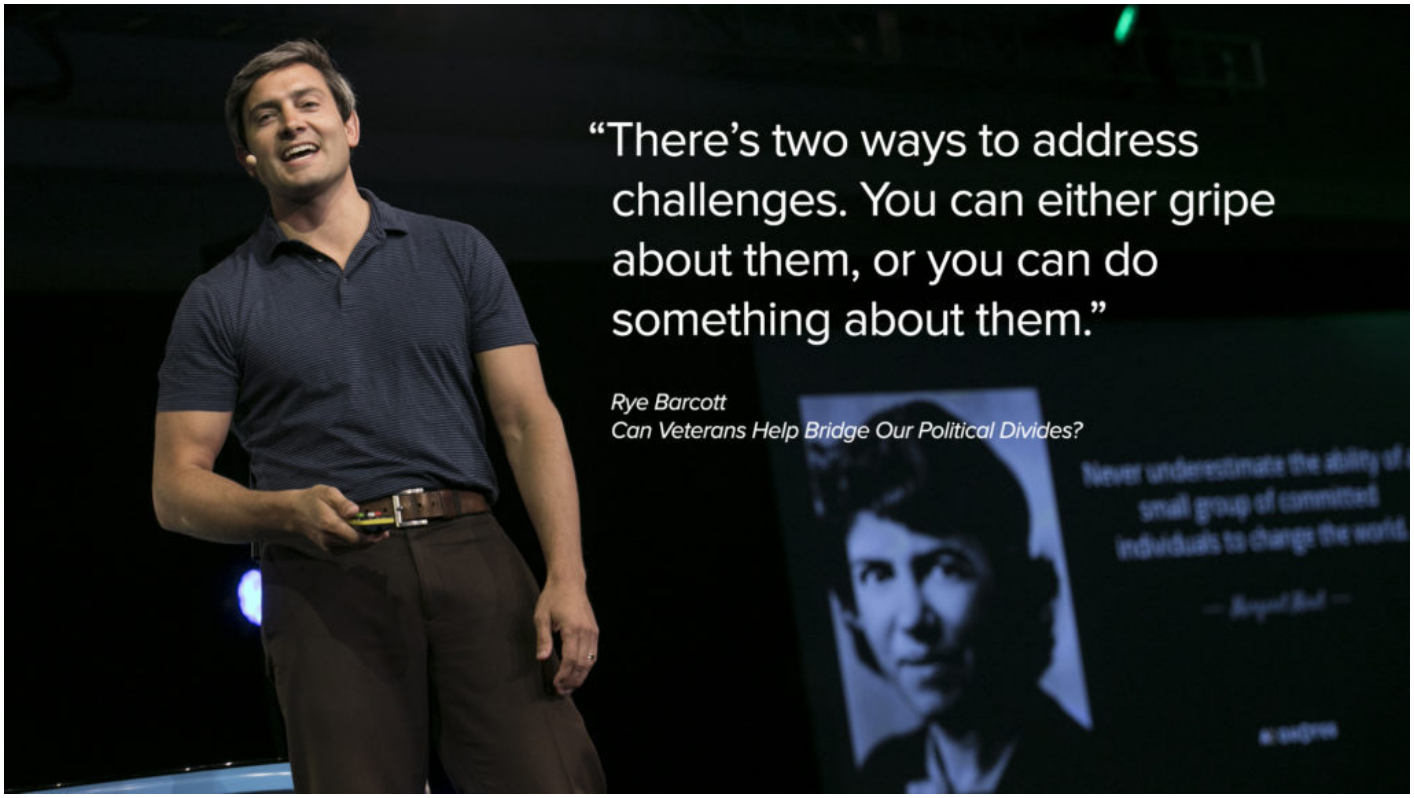
“We’re already working in a microservices world.”
Glenn Sanford
“It is better to be feared than loved.”

SUGGEST NEW CONTENT
"In this day and age we're all publishers, which means we all have responsibility."
Renée DiResta
How Disinformation is Screwing Up Your Reality
KEEP USER ON SITE
GATHER DATA



"Innovation never comes from doing things cheaper."
Jeremy Wacksman
Here's What Real Estate Will Look Like In 2020

"If we want to live in communities that are diverse and culturally rich, we all have to make the investment."
Doniece Sandoval
Radical Hospitality



"There's two ways to address challenges. You can either gripe about them, or you can do something about them."
Rye Barcott
Can Veterans Help Bridge Our Political Divides?

Images: Scott Chernis/Inman

Source: click here