Overcoming emotional attachment: 4 critical seller conversations

The best way to help sellers overcome emotional attachment to their homes is to shift the way they think about their “former” homes. Here are four important conversations that do just that. Each one is a segue to the next, with the ultimate objective of presenting the listing at its full potential when it hits the market.

Source: click here