We need to tune in to the people around us more. Here's why

If we pursued our business with the goal of real human connection, we'd be more effective marketers and real estate agents because we would understand both our colleagues and customers more deeply, and as a result, tailor our messaging and services accordingly.

Source: click here