Why a top real estate venture firm invested in $1B scooter company Lime

Some see electric scooters as a potential boon for the real estate industry — rental programs could help improve mobility and allow people to buy farther away from popular transportation routes.

Source: click here