Seniors are on the 'precipice' of a huge sell-off wave. Here's why that's bad

Real estate professionals have been waiting patiently for baby boomers to put their houses up for sale and stop the inventory crisis. But if this happens, it could actually throw the market into a tailspin, according to new research from Fannie Mae.

Source: click here